TEXAS CAPITAL BANK CONTINUES GROWTH:
HIRES SIX NEW BANKERS
*Corporate banking team joins

HOUSTON (Sept.22, 2009) – To accommodate its dynamic growth and strategic growth plan, Texas Capital Bank has made significant new hires, including hiring an entire corporate banking team from a competitor. The six new hires also add to the Bank’s energy lending and private client practice.

This continues the hiring spurt started when Bill Wilson joined the Bank as president of its Houston region in May. An experienced Texas banker, Wilson is known for winning new customers and nurturing the teams to build that business.

“Most banks are cutting staff during this recession, but Texas Capital Bank has a lot of momentum in Houston and we’re proud to add six very qualified and talented bankers who have the expertise and skills to build long-term banking relationships with customers, which is a hallmark of the Bank’s culture,” said Wilson.

Four experienced corporate bankers who work as a team have joined the Bank from Guaranty Bank in Houston: Brent Johnston, Scott Wiginton, Eric Luttrell and Jason Fowler.

“This is a coup for us as this team of bankers instantly makes Texas Capital Bank a big force in corporate banking in Houston,” said Wilson. “As the Bank continues to grow and becomes more diverse, it is imperative to our continued success to add great performers who can grow with the Bank.”

Johnston joins as executive vice president and corporate banking manager. He has 22 years of banking experience and was executive vice president and managing director of corporate banking at Guaranty Bank. He received his bachelor’s of business administration degree in finance from Texas A&M University.
